RE: IB Docket No. 11-109, LightSquared Technical Working Group Report

Dear Ms. Dortch,

We are taught from a young age not to be wasteful. I'm writing today to ask the FCC to not waste a valuable part of the electromagnetic spectrum.

Currently, a company called LightSquared has rights to a part of the electromagnetic spectrum that the company plans to use to expand America's broadband wireless capacity. However, the GPS industry wants the FCC to stop LightSquared's use of this spectrum. This would be a waste in the same way it would be wasteful for a city to demand an empty lot in its downtown remain empty. Don't be wasteful. Approve LightSquared's plans.

Sincerely,
